A BRAVE LADY!

She Endures the Pain of a Severe Surgical Operation Without Taking Chloroform.

(From the Courier.)

Mrs. Schoonmaker, of Creek Locks, Ulster Co., N. Y., had the misfortune to cut only one the sight of one of her eyes, through an accident and endured painful inflammation therein for two or three years—the other eye finally becoming sympathetic, its affected, her general health seriously suffering. Indeed she was a mere wreck, a walking skeleton. This is in brief stated, she consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of London, New York, who told her at once that the injured eye must be removed. She quietly but firmly said: "All right, Doctor but don't give me chloroform. Let my husband and my sister during the operation and I will neither cry nor stir." The work was done, and the poor woman kept her word. Talk of soldierly courage! This showed greater pluck than it takes to face a hundred guns. To rest is to regain health and vigor, one invigorant to the system, Dr. Kennedy then gave her his Favorite Remedy, which cleansed the blood and imparted new life to the long suffering woman. She rapidly regained health and strength and is now well. The Favorite Remedy is a priceless blessing to women. No family should be without it. Your druggist has it. If not, send to Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, New York. oct4 d&wlm

KOHLER HOT AIR FURNACE.

Double Radiating Surface, for Coal

The Most Successful Heater ever Sold in Our Country

This Furnace has been thoroughly tested during the last ten years, and all are delighted to bear testimony to their ECONOMY in fuel, DURABILITY, entire freedom from gas, smoke, or dust, and perfect simplicity in management.

It is self cleaning; there being no place for the lodgment of the ashes they fall back into the pit.

It has a Double Radiator, by which the hot air can be carried to a greater distance than by any other furnace.

We invite all interested to call and examine this splendid Furnace. If desired we will mail or send our books containing hundreds of references and testimonials from solid men of the highest character. We warrant every Furnace to be the most perfect and reliable ever sold. For sale wholesale and retail by

CIDER VINEGAR.

The enormous supply of apples all over the country suggests the idea that a good part of them may be turned into cider vinegar with profit. Vinegar may be made direct from the apples, but it is much preferable to first extract the cider.

When cider is intended for vinegar it should be made with the same cleanliness as if intended for drinking or keeping, and the casks into which it is put for fermentation should be equally sweet, and if old whiskey casks are used it improves the cider as well for vinegar as for drink.

There should be nothing added to the juice, as pure juice is best, the mustard seed, sulphur of lime, and other such ingredients used for stopping fermention, injure the vinegar. The better the apples the better the vinegar, and cider made late in the Autumn from fruit rich in juices, is much better than that from windfalls, and early gathered fruit, as cider is better for the same reasons.

Vinegar may be made from crushed apples or from the pomace after the cider is pressed out, as is often done from the pomace of grapes and other fruits. The apples are ground and put into shallow holders where they are left to ferment for a couple of days, then pressed and the juice put directly into old vinegar casks containing mother of vinegar. If the weather is cool the casks are placed where they will be kept warm, and in a few months the vinegar may be drawn off into clean vessels. The chief auxiliary to producing vinegar quickly is exposing the fluid to the air at a mild temperature, but for the best cider vinegar, where haste is not necessary, it is better to extract and barrel the cider, allowing it to ferment as in the best process of cider making, and then using the cider as desired. Most cider vinegar, and perhaps the best, is made by leaving the bung open and allowing the change to take place gradually which will be in longer or shorter time as the temperature is warmer or cooler.

Numerous methods are in practice by large manufacturers who purchase large quantities of cider and expose it to the air in large vats in various ways. One process is to allow the cider to run slowly over beech shavings, another allows it to trickle down over boards or shelves while still another process is to force bubbles of air through the liquor continuously.

A French method consists in scalding the barrels with water and then pouring boiling vinegar into them and rolling them until the barrels are thoroughly saturated, when the barrels are filled about one third full of cider vinegar and some two gallons of cider poured in each seventh or eighth day until the casks are two thirds full. In two weeks from the time of adding the first two gallons one-half is drawn off and the process repeated. The casks are kept as near a temperature of eighty degrees as possible.

This last process gives farmers a but for producing cider is may be desired, by keeping the barrel in a warm place and adding cider to the vinegar barrel, or by putting a quantity of sharp vinegar into the cider.

AN EPISODE OF KU-KLUXISM.

(From "Bricks Without Straw," Albion Tourgee's new book.)

"Bring a light!" shouted the leader. One of the men rushed into the house of Nimbus and snatched a burning brand from the hearth. As he ran with it out of the front door he did not see a giant form which leaped from the waving corn and sprang into the back door. He did not see the black, furious face, or the right arm, bare above the elbow, which snatched a sabre from the top of a cupboard. He did not see the glaring, murderous eyeballs peered through the vine leaves as he rushed, with the flaming brand aloft, out of the house to the hut of Eliot. As he reached the door the light fell upon the preacher, who sat upon the bed. The fear of death had passed away, even the fear of suffering had gone. His lips moved in prayer, the torturing words mingling with the curses of his assailants. "O God, my help and my shield!" ("Here he is, Go! damn him!") "Forgive them, Father!" ("I've got him!") "for they know not—a-h!"

A long, shrill shriek—the voice of a man overborne by mortal agony—sounded above the clamor of curses and above the roar of the blazing church. There was a fall upon the cabin floor—the grating sound of a body swiftly drawn across its surface—and one of the masked murderers rushed out dragging by the foot the preacher of the gospel of peace. The withered leg was straightened. The weakened sinews were torn asunder, and as his captor dragged him into the light and flung the burden away, the limb dropped, lax and nerveless, to the ground. Then there were blows and kicks and curses from the crowd, which rushed upon him. In the midst one held aloft a blazing brand. Groans and fragments of prayer came up through the din.

All at once there was a roar as of a desert lion bursting from its lair. They looked and saw a huge black form leap from the porch of the other house and bound toward them. There was a swish of a saber swung by a practiced hand, and the high peaked mask of the leader bent over the hissing blade, and was stripped away, leaving a pale, affrighted face gazing stupidly at the ebon angel of wrath in the lurid firelight. A fearful oath came through the white, strong teeth, which showed hard set below the mustache. Again the sabre whistled round the head of the avenger. There was a shriek of mortal agony, and one of the masqueraders fell. The others shrunk back. One fired a shot. The man with the torch stood for the moment as though transfixed, with the glaring light still held aloft. Then, with his revolver, he aimed a close, sure shot at the dusky giant whom he watched.

Suddenly he saw a woman's naked figure, that seemed to rise from the ground. There was a gleam of steel, and then down through mask and flesh and bone crashed the ax which had fallen by the door-step, and the blood spurted upon Lugena's unclothed form and into the face of the prostrate Elhab, as the holder of the torch fell beside him. Then the others gave way, and the two black forms pursued. There were some wild shots fired back, as they fled toward the wood behind the road.

Then from its depths came a flash and a roar. A ball went shrieking by them and flew away into the darkness beyond. At other, and another, and another. It was not the sharp, short crack of the revolver, but the fierce, angry challenge of the rifle. They had heard it before upon the battlefield, and terror lent them wings as they fled. The missiles flew here and there wherever a masked form could be seen, and pursued their flaming arrows into the wood, glancing from tree to tree, cutting through spine, and branch and splinter, bole, until the last echo of their footsteps had died away.

Then all was still except the roar of the burning church and the solemn soughing of the pines, as the rising wind rushed through their branches.

WHITTIER'S BOYHOOD DAYS

These descriptions of the scenes of Whittier's boyhood days in Amesbury, Mass., are published in the Providence Journal:

A little more than a mile out of town we pass three beautiful objects of water the most noteworthy of which formerly bore the name of Great Pond, to distinguish it from its lesser neighbors, but not many years since it was re-christened Kenoza, the Indian name for pickerel, with which it abounds. Whittier contributed to the christening ceremonies the sweet and musical poem which, in his published collection bears the title of Kenoza Lake. It closes with the following, descriptive and devout stanza:

And then the summer sun, [illegible]
And light moons with [illegible]
Revive in us the dreams of [illegible]
When we walked on the [illegible]

Keeping by the beautiful lake, with its [illegible] and irregular shore, we come on the side opposite to the village, where we take a road to the left, which soon brings us to the veritable old home, a two story house with a large chimney in the center. The small square porch at the side of the house, and particularly the door step, may be noticed for it was on this door stone, gray and rude, that the barefoot boy, Whittier, being himself the hero of that poem, enjoyed his bowl of bread and milk

Near the house and crossing the road is the little stream, "the humble brooklet of Snow Bound, which, in summer, laughed for the barefoot boy, and whose constant ripple was ever through the day and through the night whispering at the garden wall." Here between house and barn, is the road which became "a fenceless drift in the 'Snow Bound' winter, and here the old barn to which, first running the drift they went to the relief of the prisoned cattle, and which

"Through half the night, piled up beneath

THE TARIFF A LOCAL ISSUE.

The campaign is not to draw to a close without a few delicate touches of humor that will greatly soften the asperities of a bitter and hard fought contest. Gen. Hancock himself has furnished the material, and outdone Nasby Nast or Eli Perkins. The Paterson (N J) Guardian, a political new paper found out curiously enough, that 'the tariff question is creating a good deal of talk in Paterson,' and was moved by an evil genius to send a reporter to Gen Hancock to get his views on this disturbing topic. This is the result of the interview, as reported by a representative of that paper.

The General's attention had been called to the plank in the Democratic platform demanding "a tariff for revenue only" when Gen Hancock proceeded to make the following remarks

That question cannot affect the manufacturing interests of the country at the least. My election could make no difference either one way or the other. There has to be a certain amount—millions of dollars—raised by a tariff that can be got in no other way and that must necessarily give protection to the manufacturing interests of the country. The election of a Democratic President or the election of a Republican President cannot interfere with or influence that in the least. The Paterson people need have no anxiety whatever that I will ever favor anything that interferes with the manufacturing or industrial interests of the country. They will have just as much protection under a Democratic administration as under a Republican administration. The tariff question is a local question. The same question was brought up once in my native place in Pennsylvania. It is a matter that the general Government seldom cares to interfere with and nothing is likely ever to be one that will interfere with the industries of the country.

It has been said that the inevitable result of long and continued perusal of so-called independent papers like the Nat on and the springfield Republican, is to produce softening of the brain. It would seem that a West Point education, with continued service in the army, produces in some cases political idiocy. Gen Hancock, in this interview has either developed a fund of humor of which he was not supposed to be possessed or shown himself entitled to be the candidate of the Madawaska Frenchmen who sign their names with an X and who have just elected Geo W Ladd to represent the District in Congress.

That question (the tariff) cannot affect the manufacturing interests of the country in the least says Gen Hancock. If not joking will the General please inform our manufacturers and those whom they employ what question does affect their interest? The orderly who waits at the door of his headquarters could inform him that until the overshadowing importance of the questions affecting the extension of slavery and the preservation of the Union came to the front, the tariff was the one question which divided parties in the United States.

They will have just as much protection under a Democratic administration? Well the platform don't say so. But Gen Hancock may be right, as to say one thing and mean another is a line of action in which Democratic statesmen are specially gifted.

Gen Hancock continues 'The Paterson people need have no anxiety whatever that I will ever favor anything that interferes with the manufacturing or industrial interests of the country.' Gen Hancock forgets the back of the 153 electoral votes of the Solid South which he expects to receive there are the Democratic Senators and Representatives in Congress who will each and every one demand that the promise of the party embraced in the platform shall be faithfully carried out. It is not Gen Hancock that would have the said about this thing but the Solid South that is clamoring for free trade, so that it may be able to send its cotton direct to England, and receive in exchange the manufactures of that country produced by its Pauper labor instead of making use of the manufactures of the North.

Again, Gen Hancock claims that "the tariff is a local question. How the news paper reporter must have struggled to maintain his gravity in the august presence of such superb ignorance! How his brain must have whirled as the solid chunks of wisdom dropping from the lips of Gen Hancock were followed by the astonishing information that "the same question was brought up once in my native place in Pennsylvania!" Nasby himself waiting outside with his finger on the free trade key, to let in the cotton planter from Alabama, must have felt his guardianship more onerous than ever, as it dawned upon his mind that his ward couldn't even understand the principles made to order and warranted to fit.

This remarkable exhibition of statesmanship winds up with the information that "it is a matter that the general Government seldom cares to interfere with!" Does the General really imagine that the tariff is a question settled by State Legislatures? that duties are assessed and collected according to the local wants and opinions of the different parts of the country? We should have had more light on this subject had he told us how they decided this question when it "was brought up once in his native place in Pennsylvania." This omission still leaves us in the dark as to his own views on the tariff.

If this statement of Gen Hancock's was not intended as a joke, there is one more conundrum we would like to have solved—which is the biggest idiot, the statesman who made it, or the editor who published it?

From all parts of the country come reports of Republican rejoicing over the elections.

The Traveller says that the Democrats are examining the maps of Indiana, hoping to discover a Madawaska there.

THE REJOICING.

Last night the Republicans of Bangor celebrated, with that quiet joy peculiar to Republicanism, the grand victories achieved by their brethren in Ohio and Indiana. The celebration was entirely impromptu, and was confined to our magnificent campaign companies and others of our own citizens, though campaign companies from elsewhere would have been glad to participate had time permitted to make the necessary arrangements. But the delighted Republicans would not consent to restrain their pent up feelings another day, and therefore the grand demonstration last evening, though gotten up hastily, was spontaneous and hearty, and all the more gratifying on that account. A better behaved crowd never filled the sidewalks and streets to witness the splendid marching of the companies, and the magnificent display of fireworks, which far surpassed anything seen in this city for a series of years. The streets through which the procession passed were ablaze with light of different colors and degrees of brilliancy. Our Democratic friends were silent spectators of the brilliant scenes of the evening and we couldn't help thinking that, deep down in the hid rock of their hearts, many of them were really glad of the significance of the occasion.

As it was in Bangor is to night so it is all over the country, wherever a heart beats with the pulsations of Liberty. Bonfires blaze, church bells are rung, the cannon's thrilling music is heard, fireworks are burned—all expressing in their own way the joy that at this moment thrills the nation.

WELCOME

Capt Boutelle reaches home to day from a successful campaign tour of three weeks in Ohio. He returns from victorious field, where he has done efficient work and participated in meetings that can be duplicated only in the growing cities of the great expanding, and Republican West. He has everywhere been greeted with immense audiences and the press has been lavish in praise of his efforts. In the midst of these joyous days of victory, there is a feeling of regret at the repeated mistake in the Fourth District, whereby it continues its misrepresentation in Congress. But in the broad field of national victory our local disasters are lost to sight and our candidate returns to us with triumphs achieved at the Great West in the same glorious cause, to take up the work anew here, and assist in giving ten thousand majority in Maine for Garfield and Arthur.

WHAT REPUBLICAN SUCCESS MEANS

[From the N Y Tribune]

I Republican success means that the present prosperity of the country, resulting so largely from Republican legislative and executive action shall not be interrupted.

II That the present honest collection of the revenue so faithful that but one third of the per cent out of every $1,000 collected has been lost, when $11 71 of each $1 000 collected was stolen under Van Buren, shall be unchanged.

III That every mill and factory shall be kept in operation and every home industry fostered, so that mechanics and laborers may continue to be paid liberal wages and the Nation be made independent of foreign powers in time of both peace and war.

IV The continuance and permanence of the National banking system with a stable, redeemable currency of uniform value throughout every Territory and State whose full value is secured by the deposit of Government bonds beyond the possible hav of loss.

V The enjoyment of absolute freedom of conscience and of speech in every State and community North and South and the ceaseless protection of free speech by the Courts and by every officer and every department of the Government.

VI Perfect protection to all American citizens in the uncontrolled exercise of the right of suffrage, so that the fountain of power in a Republic shall not be corrupted at its source.

VII The ample guarantee of protection to human life every hour and everywhere with the whole force of the Army and Navy if need be to sustain the civil authorities in the discharge of this first and most imperative duty of a Government.

VIII The payment in the currency of the world of the whole indebtedness of the United States, as pledged by Congress implied by contract and required by universal civilized usage.

IX The faithful fulfillment of all pledges and obligations to the defenders of the Union and their families and the prompt payment of whatever pensions may now be or may hereafter become due.

X The elimination from American politics of the fatal heresy of State sovereignty and its legitimate offspring Secession and the crowning of our nationality by the judicial proclamation of the fact that the only sovereign or independent State on the continent known to international or constitutional law is the Republic itself.

XI. Greater permanency in every branch of the Civil Service, so that offices may be filled not for the benefit of individuals, but for the greatest good of the greatest number, and the public business transacted by those best qualified by knowledge and experience to transact it.

XII The preservation inviolate of the results of the war for National existence that the cause represented by Lincoln be deemed eternally right, and that represented by Davis everlastingly wrong, that patriotism be preferred to treason, and the Republic's defenders to its destroyers.

XIII. The elevation to the Chief Magistracy of a scholar, a man of learning and trained statesmen of eighteen years' continuous Congressional service, who was three times the choice of his party in Congress for Speaker, their unanimous choice for the Electoral Commission, and who, by nature, culture, and education, is the peer of any candidate of any party for the Presidency since the foundation of the Government.

Let us see, who was to have the Bangor post office, during Hancock's administration?

George Greeley thinks that the Democrats may possibly be able to save Alabama.

The Democratic papers are now taking their crow boiled.

The returns from Indiana, Ohio and West Virginia, to be found in the telegraphic columns, are provokingly meagre, and hardly as decisive as could have been wished.—Argus of Wednesday

By this time the returns are undoubtedly provokingly full, and quite as decisive as the Argus could wish.

In his facetious and happy vein, General Roberts remarked yesterday, concerning the Democratic Waterloo: "I can stand it, as I am used to defeat but it is rough on the new comers, who have just joined us!"

POLITICAL NOTES

Senator Baldwin, of Michigan, thinks that State will give from twenty thousand to twenty five thousand plurality for Garfield.

Gen Hancock is not sending off any congratulatory despatches to Greenback candidates.

Representative Hubbell, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, told the Boston Traveller correspondent Wednesday, that he was satisfied now that the 'Solid South" would be met by a solid North, and that Gen Garfield would sweep the country next month. The elections show, too, that the Republicans will have the next House of Representatives.

There is victory in the air!

It is reported that the great body of men employed in the manufacturing establishments of New York city will vote for Garfield and Arthur.

Professor Moses T Brown, who has just returned from a stumping tour in Northern New Hampshire, reports the State as solid as a rock for Garfield and Arthur. The business men and the traders see clear where the danger lies in a Democratic administration with strong Southern proclivities. The canvass shows great gains.

The Philadelphia Press says If the Democratic party of the South were only as solid for free speech as it is for free trade what a happy country this would be!

Perhaps it will relieve the mud slingers to chalk a 329 over that Ohio Republican majority.

The morning after the Maine election the Tribune said "The shipyards are not prosperous. Just wait now till you hear from the cornfields. Well the cornfields seem to have been heard from and to some purpose.—N Y Tribune.

THE VICTORY

[From the Boston Journal]

It appears that the elections in Ohio and Indiana were to the Democracy in the present campaign what the battle of Five Forks was to the Confederacy April 1 1865—a defeat which, like Five Forks, culminated in destruction at Appomattox.

[From the Lewiston Journal]

The great Republican victory in Ohio and Indiana, Tuesday has almost settled the presidential election in favor of Garfield and the republicans. The elections have demonstrated that the tide is now strongly in favor of the Republicans—a result largely due to the efforts of business men who do not desire to have business prospects endangered by a Democratic triumph.

Republicans of Maine! Your brethren of the West send you tidings of victory. Now buckle on your armor, and make Maine sure for Garfield.

[From the Portland Press.]

The result not only ensures the electoral votes of Ohio and Indiana to Garfield. It shows as well that the set of popular sentiment is toward the Republican candidate. The influence of the October vote upon New York, New Jersey and Connecticut will be great and cannot fail to place those States in the Garfield column.

There is no longe a Hancock boom. It is a thing of the past. The volunteer, not the regular, soldier the Statesman not the pretender to statesmanship will be the next President of the United States.

[From the N Y Tribune

Yesterday settled the Presidential campaign. Nothing but over confidence and impossible negligence can now prevent the election of James A Garfield. The contest is not ended, and the work that remains is as hard and exacting as any that has yet been done. But the October vote has demonstrated that it is in the power of the Republican party to elect its ticket. We should have been satisfied with a Republican majority of 7 000 in Ohio and with keeping down to 6 000 the Democratic majority in Indiana. Instead, we have swept Ohio by a majority variously estimated at from fifteen to twenty-seven thousand and have also carried Indiana. The result in Ohio is peculiarly gratifying. Four years ago with another and more popular Ohioan at the head of the ticket the October majority was only 5 000. Ohio now responds to the virulent assaults upon General Garfield which have formed the whole staple of the Democratic canvass with a majority from three to five times as great as she gave to the popular Hayes. There is a lesson for the politicians in a campaign of slander that ought to last them a lifetime.

October settles the question. The country wants no change. Least of all does it want the change proposed. Thirty five millions are not going to lay down their power and invite fifteen millions to rule over them. The Solid South is met by the Solid North, and the party that saved the Nation will continue to rule it.

PROCTOR KNOTT ENCOURAGING CRIME

The Chicago Journal has received an Evansville despatch which says that at a Democratic mass meeting in Rockport, Spencer county, on Saturday last J Proctor Knott, of Kentucky was the principal speaker. During or near the close of the meeting T N, Schoenfield shot down in cold blood, Uriah Webb, a colored man who was fleeing for his life pursued by a mob of 200 or 300 Democrats. Another negro was badly cut at the same time. While Webb lay in the street he was surrounded by Democrats in uniform, swinging their hats and cheering for Hancock.

George Irwin, a trustworthy eye-witness, has made an affidavit in which he says

Some time after supper I was present in said Schoenfield's saloon, and Mr Knott came in and remarked to said Schoenfield I understand you are the man that shot that nigger, and I want to congratulate you,' and that Mr. Knott used other language calculated to encourage said Schoenfield for the act done. This affiant says further that the language of Mr Knott greatly surprised and shocked him, and that he makes this statement freely and with regret that such a man as Mr Knott should make such an incendiary remark.

"MISTAKE" NUMBER TEN.

[From the Cleveland Herald]

SPRINGFIELD, Oct 8 Considerable excitement was occasioned about 5 o'clock this evening over the display at the place of business of one of the committeemen of the Democratic party of a genuine rebel flag. Quite a crowd of indignant citizens gathered, and some harsh language was indulged in. The excitement extended, and the Mayor, being notified, dispatched a squad of policemen to the scene, when the flag was taken down, the owner claiming a mistake. The mistake has been the cause of considerable excitement throughout the city, and has given rise to the query If such mistakes are made now, what will follow?

An Ohio correspondent says: Senator Blaine has been among the most effective speakers in the State. He has received ovations everywhere he has spoken, showing that his old popularity in Ohio still survives. He has had more people to hear him at any one of his meetings than any other speaker save the great monster meeting where General Grant and Senator Conkling both appeared. A leading Republican of Ohio remarked that Mr. Blaine has done them more good, not only this year but in past years, than any one living man.

The Commercial roosters have had their pinfeathers checked by the early frosts.

We were glad to meet Joshua Nye on the street Wednesday, on his way to a temperance gathering in Purgatory.—Exchange.

A mass meeting, probably, of the two or three hundred persons who voted for him for Governor. They ought to be able to hold a red hot meeting in such a place.

When Hancock reads the news from Ohio it will possibly occur to him that the same tariff question which once agitated his native town has been under discussion in Garfield's State.

MAINE NEWS.

Damaging Fire in Allen's Publishing House

AUGUSTA, Oct 14 Fire was discovered in the basement of E C. Allen's publishing house this morning at about 6 o'clock At first a serious conflagration was threatened as the building was full of inflammable material The fire department was promptly on hand and five streams of water were soon playing on the blazing mass The flames were confined to the basement

The damage on the building is inconsiderable On the stock and presses by smoke and water, the loss will reach several thousand dollars, but the most serious result is the inevitable delay in business which must ensue Mr. Allen was already unable to keep space with his order and it will only be by the most strenuous exertions that he can get the publications out on time

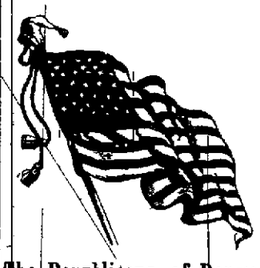
A GALA DAY!



The Republicans of Bangor Celebrate the Glorious Victory.

THE BELLS RUNG AND A NATIONAL SALUTE FIRED AT NOON.

A Grand Torchlight Parade in the Evening.

THE CITY ABLAZE WITH LIGHT.

MAGNIFICENT ILLUMINATIONS AND DECORATIONS.

NOW FOR A ROUSING TRIUMPH IN MAINE.

The celebration of the victories at the West began yesterday noon by the ringing of bells, the booming of cannon, and the shrill, hoarse shriek of the steam whistle All the church bells were rung for half an hour and never did they make grander music The steam whistles of our various manufacturing establishments gave forth their shrill music, showing that our business interests responded to the joyous feelings. The salute of one hundred guns added emphasis to the general rejoicing Most everybody was busy during the afternoon in decorations and preparations for the illuminations in the evening The day was one of the most beautiful of this autumnal period the rain of the previous day laying the dust and making the streets just right for marching in the evening.

At about half past six the members of the various campaign organizations began to assemble at the headquarters, and at a few minutes past seven o clock the procession was formed in the following order, Col Farnham and aides being mounted

Col Farnham
Aides
H M Hersey S R Prentiss A H Babcock
Bangor Band
Drum Corps
Loyal League Captain F E Smith
Young Republicans Frank Mason Captain
Garfield Cadets F G Axtell Captain
Citizens Company Marshall Dyer, Captain
St Johns Band
Drum Corps
Miss Harriman Daughter of the Ballad on Central Guards commander Anna E Gilman Cross
man and W J Clayton Captains

The procession moved over the following route Across Kenduskeag Bridge and up Hammond to Court, up Court to Exchange through Everett to Ohio, down Ohio to Hammond, up Hammond to Fifth, through Fifth to Cedar, down Cedar to Third, through Third to Clinton through Clinton to High, through High to Second, through Second to Cedar, down Cedar to First, through First to Union, down Union to Main down Main to Central, through Central to Harlow, down Harlow to State, up State to French, up French to Garland, through Garland to Broadway, down Broadway to State, up State to Essex, through Essex to Garland, up Garland to Grove, down Grove to State down State to Essex, down Essex to York, down York to Broadway, up Broadway to State, down State to Last Market Square

The illuminations along the line were very profuse and in many cases the decorations were elaborate making the demonstration, on the whole, one of the finest of the campaign The illumination at the Theological Seminary was grand and attracted great attention One of our citizens spoke of it as an illustration of the character of two parties When the Democrats came out, the jail the home of the criminal classes, was brightly illuminated, but when the Republicans came out to celebrate their glorious victory in the West, the Theological Seminary one of the grandest institutions that now sends forth its blessings to the world, blazed with light in honor of the great event, which means a continuation of the prosperity and happiness that now exists in this country The decorations on French street were unusually handsome, festoons of Chinese lanterns being hung across the street, forming an archway of fire which made a magnificent spectacle

The procession with its two bands and bright uniforms made a fine appearance as it moved through the principal streets of the city, when were thronged with people Several new mottoes and transparencies made their appearances for the first time last evening, and were highly enjoyed by all One read 'Indiana sees 329 and raises it to 7,000' Another was a photograph of the average Democrat after he had received the news from Indiana, and its original might have been seen on our streets at almost any hour of the day since the recent election

A halt was made on Ohio street in front of the residence of Mr A M Roberts, and three hearty cheers were given for Serg't Walter Roberts, of the Loyal League, whose recent painful accident prevented his taking part in the joyful proceedings The line also halted on French street where several of the patriotic citizens had refreshments prepared for the companies The two bands discoursed some fine music here and several hearty cheers were given for the residents on the street. In fact the "boys" have been in a mood for cheering even since last Wednesday morning, and they gave full vent to their feelings last evening as they passed the gaily illuminated houses. The line was dismissed in East Market Square after giving three cheers for Col Farnham.

Below we give a list of the names of those who illuminated, and if any are accidently omitted, we shall be pleased to make any additions that may be handed in

American Missionary Association

NORWICH, Conn, Oct 12, 1880

The thirty fourth annual meeting of this Association, which has for nearly four decades expended its beneficent work for the negroes, the Chinese and the Indians commenced this afternoon, at three o clock in the Broadway Congregational church Hon E S Tobey, of Boston, the President, called to order, and introduced Rev Dr Langworthy, of Massachusetts, who read the 25th chapter of Isaiah, and led in prayer. Several committees were appointed.

The report of the Treasurer, H. W Hubbard, of New York, was read Receipts, $188 900, in addition to which $150,000 was given by Mrs. Stone, of Massachusetts, which is to be appropriated to building school houses, academies, etc, for the freedmen

The report of the Secretary, Dr Strieby, followed, giving a resume of the work of the Association, during each decade From small beginnings, it has come to its present position, when there were great necessities, as well as great opportunities, for an enlargement of the work. The work of education for the freedmen was especially dwelt upon and their elevation intellectually and morally, that they may be qualified and encouraged to vote and act as citizens of this republic. The education of the Indians, at Hampton, in connection with the freedmen, was referred to as promising good and great results. The Chinese, the mission to whom in California is under the supervision of Rev. Wm C. Pond, a son of our Dr. Pond, were spoken of as improving the facilities offered them for instruction, and as exerting a good influence themselves already upon their race.

Remarks followed, earnest and instructive, on various phases of the work, illustrated by incidents will have occurred during the last four years, all showing the need and the good results of caring for these races. Dr. Robbins, of Iowa, who has a daughter a teacher among the freedmen, Rev. T L Shipman and another who were missionaries in South Carolina, in the employ of the S C. Missionary Society fifty years ago Rev R B Howard, Dr Palmer, and others were among the speakers

The different parts of the report were referred to committees to examine and report to the meeting as to what action shall be taken thereon

In the evening there was public worship and the annual sermon by Rev Dr McKenzie, of Cambridge, Mass

Dexter Notes

Our correspondent, under date of Oct 14th, writes An encampment of I O O F is being instituted here to-day Some eight or ten of the officers of the Grand Lodge of State of Maine, are present in their official capacity About twenty Odd Fellows will take their first degree in the Encampment

The Republicans have called a meeting for Friday evening, when they will make arrangements for a grand demonstration in celebration of the great western victories It will probably occur on Monday next, and it is hoped that arrangements may be made for the attendance on that occasion of some of the Bangor campaign orgaizations The Republicans here feel good, the Tusionists are nowhere to be seen One person said that not even a track where they have stepped for the last month is anywhere visible

Mrs S C Small a most estimable lady of this place, died last Monday evening and was buried on Wednesday She was one of those who are ever ready to assist any worthy enterprise by hand and voice She will long be held in grateful remembrance

The Episcopal society are preparing for a fine entertainment Friday of next week at the Town Hall

Miss Eva E Foster a very successful music teacher here, is preparing to bring out the operetta of 'Rosina' some time the latter part of November The various parts will be sustained by members of her class, which comprises some very promising singers

Clergymen Lawyers and authors find Malt Bitters a pure and safe invigorant

'I DON'T KNOW HALF THEIR VALUE 'They cured me of Ague Biliousness and Kidney Complaint as recommended I had a half bottle left which I used for my two little girls who the doctors and neighbors said could not be cured I would have lost both of them one night if I had not given them Hop Bitters They did them so much good I continued their use until they were cured That is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters, and do not recommend them high enough —B Rochester N Y See other column —American Rural Home

NOT OPEN TO THAT OBJECTION Temperance people often say that most of the popular medicines they see advertised are nine tenths rum That is true of many, but not of Dr David Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy' The doctor agrees with temperance friends that it is better to die of disease than of drink Favorite Remedy' cures Kidney Troubles Liver Complaint Constipation of the Bowels, as nothing else does or ever did It drives away sickness It cools the blood It costs only a Dollar to try it Ask your druggist or send to the Doctor at Rondout N Y d&w2w oct13

HOW HE SAVED HIS SON I read some of Franklin station Ohio has a son whom the doctors had given up with Dropsy He applied a DAY'S KIDNEY PAD when he commenced to improve and is now able to get out and attend to his work

A WISE DEACON Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family well the past season when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors visiting us so often.'

'Bro Taylor, the answer is very easy I used Hop Bitters in time', kept my family well and saved the doctor bills Three dollars worth of it kept us well and able to work all the time I'll warrant it has cost you and the neighbors one to two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time' Deacon I'll use your medicine hereafter'

PLEASANT LETTERS They are sheets of sunshine A Methodist clergyman of Hartford, Conn, writes Dr David Kennedy, of Rondout, N Y that Favorite Remedy' cured him of Chronic Liver Disease and Indigestion from which he had suffered for a long time This was spoken did but nothing more than anyone may expect who uses this medicine One dollar a bottle is a small consideration when health is in question 'The clergyman says he is going to introduce Dr Kennedy's Favorite Remedy' among his people He can't do better Health is always a friend of religion
